ONLINE RESEARCH FRAMEWORK™

The Toddington International Inc. Online Research Framework™ is designed to assist you with current and future online investigations, and should be used in conjunction with the Online Investigator's Checklist™.

While this document does not provide every possible step you may be required to take during an online investigation, it provides a structured framework and a memory aid to ensure that all important investigative steps are documented. It is the responsibility of the investigator to ensure that comprehensive notes are maintained, and that evidence is secured appropriately and in the correct manner.

Remember that legislation, case law and advances in technology may alter the way that certain investigative procedures are carried out, and legal requirements must be adhered to at all times.

It is recommended that you study the framework prior to beginning your online investigation to ensure that all measures are taken to protect your identity and that of your network prior to commencing your research or investigation via the Internet.
